Nexcor Food Safety Technologies Hires Randy Kohal

*Nexcor Team Brings Food Safety Expertise to the International Baking Industry Exposition (IBIE)
– Booth 5250*

June 28, 2019, Buford, GA – Nexcor Food Safety Technologies is preparing for IBIE and takes pride in being at the forefront of software solutions for Food Safety, Sanitation, and Maintenance and actively seeks out the most qualified individuals to join their team. For the industry leading risk mitigation solutions, KLEANZ Food Safety and Sanitation Management and CAMS-PM, quality, professional expertise is imperative to the team behind the systems. In their latest series of hires Nexcor welcomes Randy Kohal as the new VP of Food Safety and Reliability.

Randy Kohal joined Nexcor Food Safety Technologies in February 2019 after a 39-year career in food and beverage manufacturing. Previously Kohal worked for Rich Products Corporation in a Corporate Food Safety position. He provides the Nexcor Team with unique, experienced insight into corporate perspectives and expectations of food safety management. Kohal is a champion of food safety and has expertise in the importance of risk mitigation, brand protection, resource management, and expertly educates current clients and prospects. He is passionate about optimizing food safety and is continuously expanding his knowledge holding certifications in both internal auditing and Hygienic Design. Kohal will be part of the Nexcor team attending IBIE this year. He is currently participating in the development of future product offerings at Nexcor and will be demoing new offerings at IBIE.
